

Sexuality and Gender Identity Concept Map:

1. Gender Expression

The way a person outwardly presents themselves. This is often shaped by stereotypes and preconceived ideas that society imposes on people.

2. Sub Identities

It is how a person identifies in relation to the gender they were assigned at birth.

Cisgender: Identifies with birth gender

Transgender: Identifies differently from birth gender

Transvestite: Cross dresses but may not identify differently

Transsexual: Has or seeks physical transition

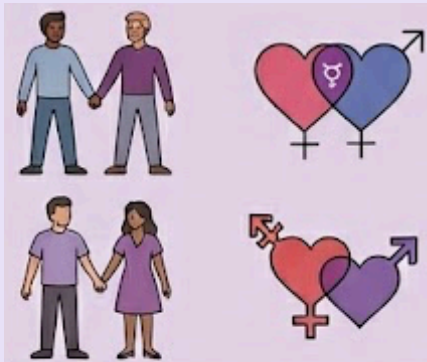

Sexuality

Is made up of four dimensions:

4. Sexual Orientation:

Who a person is emotionally or physically attracted to.

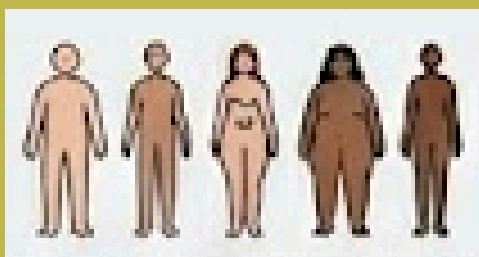

3. Gender Identity:

As internal sense of self is not strictly defined by biology. Gender as a social concept is a social construct. This means it does not have to follow fixed rules. Identity is fluid, personal and free from binary categories.

Intersexuality:

When a person is born with biological characteristics that don't fit typical male or female definitions

Fluid Identity:

The concept that identity can shift and change over time, and there should not be permanent labels
